The Phil Hardin Foundation concentrates on the following questions:

- What kind of place do we want Mississippi to be and for whom?
- How does education in Mississippi affect our communities—and how do our communities shape and determine access to and excellence in teaching and learning?
- And, finally, what are the implications for education and our communities of our increasing linkage to a global society and economy that increasingly have an impact on our daily lives and the security of our future?

Note: I called and spoke Mr. Lloyd Gray, Executive Director of the Foundation. He is very agreeable to an application for funding from The College of Business at Jackson State University.

The principal goal of the Robert M. Hearin Foundation is to contribute to the overall economic advancement of the state of Mississippi by supporting four-year colleges and universities and graduate professional schools in the state which prepare students who will directly contribute to the state through capital investment, creation and expansion of higher paying jobs, and improvement in the state's economy.

The Foundation concentrates its efforts in the areas of attracting promising students to, and improving the quality of instruction in, educational institutions in the fields of business, science, engineering, economics, law, medicine, accounting, pharmacy, architecture, and other academic disciplines which contribute to the state's economy.
