Biography/History:

An English Professor at Jackson State University, Adams-Johnson is a native of Mississippi. She attended Jackson Public schools, where she, at age 17, was one of the leading students to organize the 1963 walk-out and march of students from three black public high schools in Jackson. Upon graduating from high school, she did undergraduate studies at Tougaloo College, where she, as a pre-freshman in 1964, joined Freedom Summer. She later moved to New York City, where she remained involved in the movement for civil and human rights. In 1968, she became an active member of the Black Panther Party for Self-Defense and served as an officer in the New York State Chapter. Additionally, she returned to school and completed her undergraduate studies at Queens College of the City University of New York, graduating with honors in poetry. She received a MA in Creative Writing from City College of the City University of New York. She began teaching at the college level as a graduate student, subsequently becoming an Instructor of English. While teaching and living in New York City, various organizations, colleges and universities utilized her services as a lecturer and oral historian to speak on "The Role of Women in Civil and Human Rights Movement."

Mrs. Johnson is a noted poet, fiction writer, and playwright. Her poetry has appeared in various literary journals, and she was one of the first of three writers to receive the John Oliver Killens Fiction Award, for excerpts from her memoir, Daughter of the Whirlwinds.

In 1999, Mrs. Johnson relocated back home to her native Mississippi. Since her return to Jackson, she has read and performed her poetry and produced a play, From Africa to America. As a writing and language arts consultant dedicated to the creation and promotion of literacy and literature, she founded and facilitates the Write On Writers Guild, and she conducts creative writing workshops for various organizations around the Jackson metropolitan area. In 2005, she was featured in Images from the Edge: A Collection of Writings and Artwork from the Mississippi State Hospital Community Services Stubbs Homeless Program. A panel of literary judges for the Mississippi Arts Commission noted her work and recommended her for an artist fellowship for her collection of short stories, No Turning Back.

Mrs. Johnson is the former chairwoman of the Veterans of the Mississippi Civil Rights Movement, and she currently serves on the planning committee for the 7th Annual Veterans' Conference. She remains active in community issues and is a passionate educator dedicated to the promotion of quality education, particularly among African-American youths.
