Admissions Policy regarding Transfer of Prior Graduate Work:

Graduate students with qualifying previous graduate coursework may request transfer of credit. The DCT will submit the syllabi to the Curriculum Committee, a standing subcommittee of the Graduate Faculty. The professor assigned to a particular course has the discretion to determine if substantial equivalency exists between the two courses. Additionally, the faculty member may choose to meet individually with the student making the request to discuss course and/or assess the graduate student's knowledge in that area. The Graduate School limits the number of transfer credit hours to 15, which is typically the equivalent to 5 courses that are 3 semester hours each. Also, the course must be equivalent to 700-level courses at JSU and should include coverage of pertinent multicultural issues commensurate with the program's focus and expectations. Only a limited number of courses can be transferred from a particular core (i.e., General, Research, or Multicultural/Diversity). The Graduate School requires that student complete the program with 8 years of the first enrollment date into the program.
