

Richard Wright Center

Writing | Rhetoric | Research

Writing in college may be difficult, especially in a language different from your native one. The Richard Wright Center (RWC) offers support with writing, reading, and speaking skills for academic and professional purposes to all international students.

You may request a one-to-one consultation to receive feedback on and ask questions about

- essays
- research papers
- thesis and dissertations
- resumes
- job, graduate school, or scholarship applications
- speeches and presentations
- dissertation defense practice
- visual aids (e.g., posters, PowerPoint slides)
- citation and documentation of sources, using the APA, MLA, or other styles
- and more!

How to Request a Consultation

1. Visit our website: www.jsums.edu/wrightcenter, or scan the code.
2. Click “Make an Appointment” on the menu.
3. Follow instructions on the log-in page.

What to Expect

- You and your writing advisor will work one-on-one.
- You can meet with a writing advisor online or in the center.
- If you have a group project, you can work together.
- You can request a consultation before you start writing, even if you do not have a draft.
- You can print what you may need in the RWC.

Other Ways to Use the Center

- Request a workshop for your class or study group.
- Refer to resources on writing available on our website.
- If you want to improve your English-speaking skills, we can be your speaking partners. Send us an email to learn more.

The Richard Wright Center
H. T. Sampson Library, 1st Floor
www.jsums.edu/wrightcenter
wrightcenter@jsums.edu | 601.979.0694